This included making an overall strategic plan for the Pacific and a secret reconnaissance on whose basis the first Guadalcanal offensive was launched.

Letters to the Editor
Editor Times-Mirror:
On the right hand side as you go up Conewango Ave., the second lot above Jackson street, stands a nice little house sheltered by trees and a hedge in front. The last occupant was evidently the last of his line for the home has stood empty for years and the kids have smashed the windows out. The writer understands the school board has control. But, why, in Heaven's name does not whoever has control of it put it in repair and sell or rent it? The writer has visited this home in years gone by and it was a nice little place, with grapes, fruit and berries and a nice garden. Sure make a nice home for someone and a better location cannot be found in Warren.

Davidson Co. Celebrating 100th Anniversary of Store

The Davidson Company is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the store and the founding of the dry goods business here by O. H. Hunter, a pioneer in Warren business life. Mr. Hunter undoubtedly would not recognize the store today as it has been so modernized and the lines of merchandise have been so changed.
Many of the older folk of the city remember O. H. Hunter, a kindly looking old gentleman with white whiskers and twinkling eyes. His son, Henry P. Hunter, is also favorably remembered. An old history of Warren published back in 1887 in speaking of the Hunter store said that Mr. Hunter entered business here when a youth and by service, courtesy and honesty has become one of the leaders in the town's business life.
Mr. Hunter is thought to have started business about 1846 in the store and in 1878 his son, Henry P. Hunter entered business with him. The firm then became known as O. H. Hunter and Son. In 1908 the store was sold to Louis H. Green, who had long been a clerk in the

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES
LITERATURE THE SPARKHOUSE OF KNOWLEDGE THE RECORD OF CIVILIZATION THE FULCRUM FOR THE LEVER OF PROGRESS
Readers will be interested in the recent additions to the non-fiction section at the Warren Public Library. The following list does not include books added as memorials. A list of the books presented as memorials during the past two weeks will appear in these columns in the near future.
With elections over, and wild pre-election promises simmering down to "possible" changes, Wilfred Brinkley's excellent history "American Political Parties" will serve as a valuable essay on what really happens after elections. The story of the Molly Maguires has always interested, and probably shocked, citizens of our state. J. W. Coleman's thesis—"Labor Disturbances in Pennsylvania"—treats the riots in the hard coal country with restraint and understanding. One of the most valuable additions to the growing collection of books on the oil industry is DeGolyer's "Bibliography of the Petroleum Industry" in which he lists an impressive collection of printed material on the subject.
One of the beautiful books of the fall is the handsome edition of Stephen Foster's melodies called "A Treasury of Stephen Foster." "Aude's New Auto Guide" is a perennial favorite, especially now as worn out cars are in need of special attention. To help the speaker whose plant is "failing" nothing is better than "The Car" written by a book called "Garnell" has written a book called "Oh dear! What shall I wear?" and in it gives some helpful answers to the age-old question. Warren's growing group of amateurs in the arts will appreciate Clarence Hornig's "Handbook of Designs and Devices." He is one of the foremost designers of trademarks in the country and, in his book, gives many helpful suggestions to artists. The late Adolph Ochs, of the New York Times, has a definite biography in Berald Johnson's "The Honorable Titan." Two books for the student of foreign languages are "Spoken French for students and travelers" and "Spoken Italian for Students and Travelers," both by Charles Kany.
There has never been so much good music available to listeners as now—by radio or records. William Kreutz has written an excellent book on music appreciation for children in "Music for Your Child." Readers of the hilarious "Suds in Your Eyes" and "High Time" will appreciate the author's (Mary Laswell) "Mrs. Rasmusen's Book of One-Armed Cookery." The first two books mentioned were printed in the Armed Forces Editions for the army and the cook book comes as a result of many demands from G. I.'s who wanted to know how the three old gals dreamed up the delicious stews and other dishes. Thomas McDermott has written a fine and accurate biography of Pope Pius XII in "Keeper of the Keys." Hisdry goods business and to John Blair. In 1912 the John Blair interest was sold to Perry A. Davidson and the firm was known as Green and Davidson. In 1919 Thomas I. Donaldson purchased the interest of Mr. Green and the firm name was changed to Davidson and Donaldson. Mr. Donaldson's death in 1925 caused his interest to be taken over by William G. Alexander (who later withdrew) and Margaret C. Alexander and the firm was incorporated as the Davidson Company.

Thus the store continues today and on the 100th anniversary of its founding the same policy of fine quality, honesty and courtesy is continued and many excellent lines of nationally advertised goods are featured. Mr. Davidson, who for 25 years has been identified with the firm this morning said "The Davidson Company is proud of the record of the store and it is with a deep feeling of gratitude that thanks are extended to the many loyal customers some of whose names have been for half a century on the books of the store."

DEATHS SHOWED DROP
A sharp drop in highway fatalities in rural areas in October following launching of Governor Martin's campaign to reduce the state's traffic toll was reported today by the Pennsylvania State Police. C. O. C. M. Wilhelm, police commissioner, said reports to State Police showed 65 persons were killed last month on rural roads against 93 who met death in traffic accidents in the corresponding month of 1945 and the 124 killed in October, 1944, the last normal pre-war traffic year.

FOR CLEAR STREAMS

So far, 531 municipalities and 426 industries have been directed to prepare sewage treatment plans. Among those notified today were the Valley Creamery Co., Cambridge Springs; Pringle Powder Co., and Susquehanna Chemical Co., both of Bradford.

Donald Kuhre, club chaplain, will conduct an appropriate worship service, and a program of patriotic sound motion pictures will be shown. All members of the Club, as well as candidates to be inducted later, are urged to be in attendance at this meeting. CAR HIT BEAR
Police Lieut. M. Evan, who has "run into" all sorts of things during his years of sleuthing on Sunday evening bumped into a big shaggy black bear while on his way from Sheffield to Warren. At Weldbank a husky black bear attempted to cross the road in front of Mr. Evan's car. Too late to stop his auto, Mr. Evan plunked into the big fellow. The car caught his rearview on the head and the big boy went down—but not out. He snook himself and galloped off into the brush at the side of the road with many a lusty "woof" and grunt. Evan got out and inspected his car and was not damaged as the bumper caught the bear and saved the car.

100 Years Old

The Davidson Company is celebrating the Store's one hundredth Anniversary and the beginning of the thirty-fifth year under the present management

From History of Warren County published in 1887 we quote the following:

"Mr. O. H. Hunter, the widely-known dry goods merchant above referred to, has had a longer continuous business experience than any other merchant in Northwestern Pennsylvania, and possibly in the State. More than forty-one years ago, when but a boy, he commenced business here. He has continued with varying success until the present, and now stands at the head of an extensive dry-goods establishment, employing a large number of salesmen and women, the annual sales of which would be creditable to houses in any of our cities. He has seen Warren grow from a small hamlet to a populous town, containing among its residents a larger proportion of wealthy men than any other place of its size in Pennsylvania."

According to the above account O. H. Hunter the original organizer and owner of this store started in the dry-goods business about 1846 and this store is now one hundred years old.

Sometime previous to 1878 O. H. Hunter took his son into the business and the firm name became O. H. Hunter & Son.

In 1908 the business was sold to Louis H. Green and John Blair—In 1912 the interest of John Blair was sold to Perry A. Davidson and the firm became Green and Davidson.

In 1919 Thomas I. Donaldson purchased the interest of Mr. Green and the firm name changed to Davidson & Donaldson.

In 1925 Mr. Donaldson died and the interest of the Donaldson Estate was purchased by Mr. Davidson, Wm. G. Alexander (who later withdrew) and Margaret C. Alexander and incorporated under the name of Davidson Company.

Quality has always been the policy of this store and today we are proud of the various Nationally known lines of merchandise we carry which have refrained from lowering their standard of quality to overcome shortages. We appreciate the fact that the store has been serving generation after generation of Warren County families. It is with a deep feeling of gratitude that we thank our many loyal friends and customers.

WITH his habitual clipped formality Von Beck told her he had seen them in the sleigh when he was skiing.

"In fact it was Madame Runstedt who pointed you out to me."

"Oh," Stephanie took a breath, any mention of Freya now sent her thoughts scampering. "Were you skiing with Freya?" He smiled fatuously.

"We met by accident. She's a remarkable woman, too bad she tied up with a fellow like Runstedt."

"You don't know Ernst," she said so quickly he looked at her curiously.

"Are you pleading his case?"

"That," she said with cold dignity, "is no longer necessary." Then she realized that no one had introduced Glita to Conrad so she drew them together. Conrad inclined his head a little meeting her eyes; she only repeated his name by way of acknowledgment.

"It seems incredible," said Franz, "that you two have never met—considering that he had told Conrad all about her."

"But we are not absolute strangers," Glita was saying, and her sudden smile made him know who knew her so well a wry reserve. He thought, my god, she knows I've talked to him about her! Conrad's eyes flickered across his face and Glita's, then he bowed slightly in acknowledgment of the veiled appraisal in her luminous eyes. Franz wished she hadn't come; he didn't want her crossing swords with Conrad.

From the minute he knew he was going to leave Germany Franz hoped vaguely that Stephanie and Conrad might become friends of Glita, hoped for it without any definite idea of how he could establish such a friendship. It was an intangible desire to erect a solid block of defense against Von Beck. There was in him an unacknowledged distrust of the General.

Von Beck was uneasy too about Glita and Conrad but for a different reason. He didn't understand her well enough to read the expression in her eyes but he felt she was attracted to Conrad. He didn't want that. It was bad enough dealing with Franz. That the in-born contempt she held for men included himself he did not mind, because it included Franz too, but Conrad was above her contempt. He didn't want her to discover that fact.

Impatiently he stood polishing his monocle while Joseph served drinks.

"Shall we drink ours in the library?" he murmured to Franz. Conrad also. Franz motioned to Conrad, then stood looking awkwardly at Stephanie. Gently she put a hand on his arm.

"Don't worry about us, Franz, we can entertain each other." He smiled a strained compressed smile of the lips only, then followed the others.

THEY both watched him go then their eyes met. Stephanie's glass was shaking visibly because of the trembling of her hands. Without a word Glita reached over and took the glass out of her hand and set it with her own on the table. Stephanie didn't move; she felt ill, seized with a ghastly weakness.

"I knew it would upset you if I came," said Glita softly.

"We must face it sometime."

"But not in your home... I don't want to intrude in your home, but I thought this might be a good opportunity to explain."

"Oh," Stephanie hurriedly broke in, "I don't want any explanations."

"You don't understand... it's about Von Beck not Franz," Stephanie stared at her a second then said:

"Let's sit down." For a moment they were both preoccupied by the strangeness of confiding in each other, then Glita began to talk, quietly without emotion, as if she was thinking aloud.

"I've known Paul Von Beck all ways, our family estates in the north adjoin. Every Sunday he used to visit my parents because he wanted to marry me. He's older than I. I amused my parents, and I think it was his witty remarks that kept my head from being turned by his obvious devotion. When I was older I told him I didn't want to marry him but he thought he could change my mind—still thinks so. He's persistent, it's the only thing about him I'm afraid of really—that untiring persistence of his." She was silent for a minute, considering what she had just said as if trying to trace a picture of it in her own mind. "Lately he's begun to be apprehensive, jealous in a cunning vindictive way that's almost like insanity. Suddenly she stood up and walked to the fireplace to steady her nerves, then she turned to look directly at Stephanie. "I'm not sure it isn't insanity," Stephanie was startled, beginning to see a point in what she was saying; the knowledge of it was already in her eyes.

"You see what I'm driving at, don't you?"

"That he's jealous of Franz."

"Dangerously jealous." Then she added in a hurried low voice, "I don't trust his motives in this affair, I think he intends to have Franz caught in a trap." Then with deeper feeling, "You must stop this thing, Stephanie, before it's too late. I feel that something terrible is going to happen... that we haven't much time!" Stephanie gave her a long look.

"Would you help me," she asked slowly, "if I can think of a way to outwit Von Beck?"

"Yes." The luminous green eyes were honest, steady.

"He'll kill you if he knows of it," said Stephanie.

A little half-smile flickered around Glita's lips then vanished.

"It's terribly strange," she laughed lightly, "talking this way. I'm getting a headache, do you mind if I finish my drink... then I'll leave without Paul." A queer feeling of confidence came over Stephanie, women have a certain courage of their own.

They were standing in the hall when Von Beck entered from the library. As he looked at them the smile stiffened on his lips. There was something unreadable in both their faces, something out of key with his own arrangements. For a minute there was such a silence they could hear the faint flurry of the snow against the window panes. He managed to say casually, "I'll see you to the car, Glita, I'm not leaving till later."

Chapter 14

VON BECK escorted Glita down the steps and handed her into the car as Stephanie stood watching from the doorway. He waited in the driveway till the car turned the curve then mounted the steps, slowly as if struggling for a decision at each step. When he looked up and saw her watching him his small eyes expanded with surprise, then wariness. He closed the door and stood with his back against it holding her gaze, then suddenly he laughed aloud and screwing in his monocle walked past. In a daze she heard the heavy door close behind him. She stood at the foot of the staircase listening to the murmur of their voices. Suddenly it all seemed too intolerable... too much was being left to time and chance. He must help Niel Dana get away at once.

"Tomorrow," she said to herself, "I'll go to Freya."

Niel had cut around the rectangle, what remained was the monotony of prying plaster from the wall. Most of the night could be required to do the job quietly. He leaned against the wall to rest a minute otherwise he might not have heard the faint pounce from the corridor. Feverishly he dusted the plaster from him then switched off the closet light and tiptoed to the bedroom. It came again, a nameless noise, then a white envelope slid under his door. Cautionously he went forward and picked it up. It was a letter from Niel. He slipped it into his pocket and went back to his work. He felt elated. Wearing civilian clothes lent him a better chance of getting away if the house was guarded. He worked faster stopping more often to listen. Vaguely he felt that the General might want to see him. Getting piece after piece of plaster on the shelf above the hanging rod he lost all cognizance of time. Imagination outstripped the work of his hands—a dozen times he gained the attic, down those back stairs to run madly through the woods to the hill to the rink. A dozen times he found Freya each time in a different setting, strangely his imagination never went beyond that point.

Then he heard Conrad's long stride and barely reached the bed before he opened the door.

"Going to bed?" His voice sounded like thunder.

Niel grinned, but inside he felt weak. "Let's take a walk to the local pub."

"A good idea, but they want you downstairs."

"Yes."

He dressed in the bathroom dislodging plaster.

"What's it all about?" he called out.

"You'll see."

"Holy Sebastian," he swore softly coming into the bedroom. "I wish I'd a crystal ball."

"I wish," said Conrad in a strained voice, "it was anyone but you. This is the first time in my life I wished I was dead."

Unconscious crept over Niel. "You're not the type."

"There is no type... it's not the man who snuffs off his own candle."

Niel sat down abruptly. "Why not shift over to my side?" he asked hoarsely.

Conrad shook his head. "There's no sense in us talking it over. Though I stop now it wouldn't influence the others. I can only stand here and beg your pardon—which is futile."

"I don't know what to say to you."

"Say nothing... when it's over you'll know what to say."

In the silence the room felt cold, the last embers sputtered out by one. Involuntarily Niel shivered.

FARM NEWS

The importance of keeping complete records on dairy herds is cited by County Agent O. C. Tritt in pointing out three important helps such information can give. Records permit an analysis of the results of good feeding and management and the breeding efficiency of the herd and sires. Records also enable dam and daughter comparisons on a basis for proving sires and in locating superior producing cow families.

Enterprising, progressive dairy farmers also are giving increasing attention to maintaining healthy herds in good breeding condition, to healthy calves which are well fed and given proper care, and in providing an abundance of high-quality hay and pasture.

Also included in top-notch dairy plans are provisions for good roughage balanced with grain, and fed according to milk production and condition of cow. Another important factor, of course, is a managed milking program. Managed milking protects udders, results in more and better milk, saves time, also equipment, since fewer machines are necessary.

Whether dairy barns are old or recently constructed, proper ventilation may be a problem remaining to be solved, notes County Agent O. C. Tritt in offering some suggestions for correcting these needs.

Warm air is lost where dairy barns are ventilated up through the hay hole, and common roof ventilators are useless and of little value unless directly connected with the stables by means of insulated ducts. Even better is a tight, flue with homemade head or electric fan drawing the air from the stable floor.

Windows make poor intakes. Positive systems favor definite intake ports protected from the weather and trapped against the wind. Although the gravity flue type of ventilation system gives satisfactory service, a fan outtake controlled by a thermostat may be less expensive. Its operation is more satisfactory in muggy weather.

This is particularly true of one-story barns which are not high enough for effective gravity flue ventilation. A common mistake is to place all fans on thermostatic control. Since air change in the barn is the object in ventilation, at least one fan should operate independent of electric control. If a barn gets too cold with the fans operating, tighter construction or insulation will be necessary.

A well-built ventilating system makes uniform circulation of the air and distributes the heat. Barns where water pipes freeze with fans off may give no trouble with the fans running. A new mimeograph on both gravity and electric barn ventilation is available at the county agent's office for persons concerned with these problems.

Woodlots Require Good Management

Because of the large amount of weak, worthless, or defective trees allowed to interfere with the more valuable trees, many farm woodlots in Warren County are producing at a rate of only half to one-third of their capabilities. Space taken up by defective stock could be utilized to better advantage, if devoted to good crop trees. Practicing proper thinning and cultural methods in the woodlot can be as important as the proper management of any other cash crop.

Where woodlot management or other timber-related demonstrations are desired they can be arranged through the county agent.

Put Anti-Freeze and Light Oil In Tractor

If the farm tractor is to continue in use during the winter one of its first requirements will be light oil—10 to 20 grade—in the crankcase.

Light oil will enable easier starting, and cranking. Thin oil will reach working parts quicker and keep wear at a minimum while the engine is warming up.

If the tractor is to be used very much during the winter, lighter lubricants—about 90 grade—in the transmission will contribute to better performance.

Some type of anti-freeze is necessary for tractors in use during freezing weather to prevent damage caused by water freezing. Usually permanent anti-freezes are preferred, provided there are no head gasket leaks which let the solution get into the oil and cause damage.

The more volatile solutions are less permanent protection against freezing, and may be needed to be replenished, but will cause less damage from possible leakage through cylinder head gaskets.

To facilitate starting, the magneto and breaker points, as well as spark plugs and valves, need to be checked and placed in first class condition.

Librarian Speaks To Club Members

So You Want To Write a Book? was the theme chosen by Librarian Carl Hull for his address at the Literature Department meeting at the Woman's Club Monday afternoon.

Mr. Hull's talk had nothing to do with the actual writing of a book but dealt with the mechanics of getting a manuscript into print. He outlined what to expect in the way of financial returns, the business of a cover design, advertising, book clubs and many other phases of the publishing of a book. His very evident knowledge of the topic and interesting manner of presentation made the afternoon one of the finest the department has enjoyed in many months.

Mrs. William Hill announced that Harold Putnam will speak on Allegheny River improvement at the next Monday meeting of the Community Service Department. Mrs. H. R. Robertson reminded the group of the bazaar tea next week, and announcement was made of a box social to be held November 23.

Mrs. Marion Von Tackey, hostess for tea, invited Mrs. M. F. Cowder and Mrs. K. M. Andrews to preside at the attractive table.

Knowledge For Leadership

In the days ahead our young people are going to have to live in a much smaller world than the one we now know. They will have to meet and deal with people of many races, many religions, many cultures, and many political opinions. There will have to be give-and-take all up and down the line, not as between superiors and inferiors, but between equals. Our young people will need the knowledge that is based upon a genuine interest in other people and a willingness to learn from them. How well are we equipping them for such a role? Since this is American Education Week, it seems a good time to realize that schools and parents should share that responsibility. The attitude of parents is an important factor. They are, however, not the only ones influencing their children. Parents should put in the way of their children books and other materials that will stimulate an interest in other peoples of the world. The importance of thus cultivating in youth a friendly and interested attitude in others cannot be stressed too much. Our boys and girls are going to have to take part some day in international undertakings of many kinds, either themselves or through their representatives. Leadership will be drawn from all kinds of people, living under all kinds of conditions. Only those who can understand new ways and different ways will be able to make a contribution. Visit your schools this week, learn more about the people who are instructing your children, look at their textbooks, take a greater interest in what they are being taught. Only in that way can American Education Week be the success that its sponsors wish it to be.

Peel and dice the eggplant. Cook gently in oil until tender. Add tomatoes, seasonings and rice. Cover tightly and cook for 35 minutes. Prepare meat balls according to your favorite recipe, binding them with an egg yolk so they will not break apart. Bring the stock to boiling point and gently poach the meat balls in it. Sprinkle in the parsley or chives. Combine with the first mixture and serve very hot. Serve the cheese separately.

The mother who packs a daily lunch box will find that homemade cookies and an occasional piece of quick bread contribute a pleasant variety.

Notre Dame and Army Close In AP Football Poll This Week; Georgia Tech Third

BY AUSTIN BEALMER
New York, Nov. 12.—(P)—Army and Notre Dame fought to a scoreless tie in their historic grid battle here last Saturday but when the votes were counted today in the weekly poll of the Associated Press to pick the nation's ten top teams the Cadets wound up in first place by a very narrow margin.

Among the 14 writers who participated in the poll, including the Sports Editor of the Stars and Stripes in Germany, 37 of them cast first-place ballots for Army and 31 decided that Notre Dame should be on top.

Thirty-six of them had as much trouble reaching a decision as the teams themselves had on the field. These 36 voted for a first-place tie between the two.

On the basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second, and so on, the Cadets came up with a total of 1,300½ points against 1,266½ for Notre Dame.

Georgia's all-victory Bulldogs, who downed Florida, 33-14, for their seventh triumph of the season, retained the third position in the standings with 12 first-place votes and a total of 1,061½ points.

The seven remaining first-place votes went to the University of California at Los Angeles, which kept its record clean with a 14-0 victory over Oregon and held on to fourth place with 961½ points.

Pennsylvania which bounced back from its upset by Princeton to humble Columbia, 41-6, jumped from ninth to fifth place, succeeding Rice, a team that was tumbled completely out of the first ten on a 7-0 upset by Arkansas.

Texas slung to its sixth-place berth, whipping Baylor, 22-7, while Georgia Tech moved into seventh place after its 23-20 conquest of Navy.

Tennessee dropped from seventh to eighth, although the Vols got past Mississippi, 18-14, and Illinois moved from tenth to ninth without playing a game.

Michigan landed in the tenth spot, returning to the select circle as the result of its 55-7 victory over Michigan State.

Standing of the top ten teams (points based on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 system of counting):

Team First First Points Place Place Votes

1—Army 37 28 1300½
2—Notre Dame 12 — 1061½
3—Georgia 12 — 1061½
4—U. C. L. A. 7 — 961½
5—California 7 — 961½
6—Texas 6 — 861½
7—Georgia Tech 5 — 861½
8—Tennessee 4 — 861½

DUQUESNE FRESHMEN WILL BE AT OIL CITY

Oil City, Nov. 12.—(P)—The Duquesne University freshmen, playing in a steady drizzle and chill wind, downed Alliance College 25-0 in a charity football game here last night.

Duquesne chalked up its first tally in the opening period when twice Sundry raced 58 yards with a returned punt. Thereafter there was no scoring until the final frame when Duquesne clicked off three counters, one of them a 75-yard punt run back by Mike Basile.

GREENE'S AND STRUTHERS WIN IN PRACTICE AT "Y"

Two practice games were held last night at the YMCA in the practice round of the "Y" City Basketball League. In the first game the G. G. Greene team met the National Forge and defeated them 58-18 and in the second, starting at 8:00 o'clock, the Struthers Wells team defeated the newly formed Town Taverns, 42-18.

In the first game, the Conroy, Finley, Johnson scoring combination accounted for 22 points in the final quarter. Dick Finley was high scorer of the game with 18 counters while "Leak" Conroy followed closely with a 16 score. Bob Johnson had 14 points.

In the second game Ruhlman, Traub, and Hammerback each had ten points for Struthers Wells while Schmidt's 8 was high for the Taverns. The teams comprised of mostly recently discharged veterans. Terry Ruhlman, hitting close to six feet three inches on the measuring stick will undoubtedly be a big gun for the Wellers. Ruhlman is light on his feet and a tricky ball handler despite his size.

The rosters and fees ($5.00) must be in by November 13 for the regular playing season.

23 DRAGONS GET LETTERS FOR SEASON

It was announced this morning by Coach J. B. Leiding that twenty-three men, including four student managers will receive their letters for the 1946 football season. Of these, four are receiving their second letter, and nine will be returning next year.

The letter winners include Aalpi Aurillo, Elwood Beckwith, Ralph Bevelino, Sig Decker, Don Duckett, Elmer Dutches, Ralph Fischer, Jerry Hartnett, Phillip Johnson, Fred Kleshauser, Don Kuhre, Dave Lane, Ed Leonard, Dave Lopez, LeRoy Marti, Elmer Mellander, Richard Morrison, Duane Schmiedel, Frank Shanshala, Fred Shattuck, Chuck Sherman, Randy White and Ed Wollaston. Aurillo, Hartnett, Marti and Wollaston are the student managers while Wollaston, along with Don Duckett, Dave Lopez and Frank Shanshala are the boys receiving their second letter.

Returning to the team next year are: Dave Bevelino, quarterback; Ralph Fischer, halfback; Phil Johnson, guard; Fred Kleshauser, center; Don Kuhre, end; Ed Leonard, fullback; Duane Schmiedel, guard; Ted Shattuck, halfback; and Randy White, tackle. These returning boys leave only an end spot and a tackle for newcomers next season, unless one is beaten from his position, which is unlikely.

Penn. Cadets Will Be "Up" For Weekend

By HERR ALTSCHULL
Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—(P)—That intangible football factor called inspiration may well determine the outcome of the Army-Pennsylvania game Saturday.

But the inspirational theme has its point and counter point: 1. Penn, with one of its classiest teams in history, will be "up" for the game, remembering the 62-7 and 61-0 defeats the last two seasons.

2. Red and Blue team also is out to make up for its surprising 17-14 loss to Princeton, the only blemish on its 1946 record.

2. But Army also has inspirational factors in its favor. The mighty wartime Cadet team, with only two more games to play before graduation breaks it up, may be on the rebound after being held scoreless by Notre Dame after 23 straight victories.

Penn. administrators recall that last season's Army had its worst football drubbing at Franklin field, winning 48-0 in 1940.

Preliminary betting figures rate Army a 13 or 14 point favorite for the Franklin field spectacle to be witnessed by nearly 80,000 persons.

Scout Horace Hendrickson returned from the Army-Notre Dame game to report to coach George Munger and the Penn players:

"Army is still Army. It is still as good a team as it was the last two seasons. They use the 'T' with all the smoothness and precision expected of a team of its caliber. The line is potent, make no mistake about that. They have lost several good players, but from observation, they are not one bit weaker than they were a year ago."

Following Hendrickson's report, Munger sent his squad through its most intensive blackboard drill of the season, studying ways of halting the running of Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis and the passing of Arnold Tucker.

Penn, ranked fifth in the nation, had amassed an average of almost 39 points per game in its first six contests. Its players were "up" for every game but the Princeton tussle and they'll be "up" for Army, rated number one in the land.

The key question in Philadelphia is whether Army will be able to lift itself "up" for a second straight week of rugged football.

FLORIDA IS TOUGH
Villanova, Pa., Nov. 12.—(P)—Scout Jerry Neri of Villanova college reported today that the University of Florida, Villanova's opponent Saturday night, "has a good ball club that's long overdue."

The Gators, although unvictorious this season, put up a tough fight against powerful Georgia Saturday before bowing, 33-14.

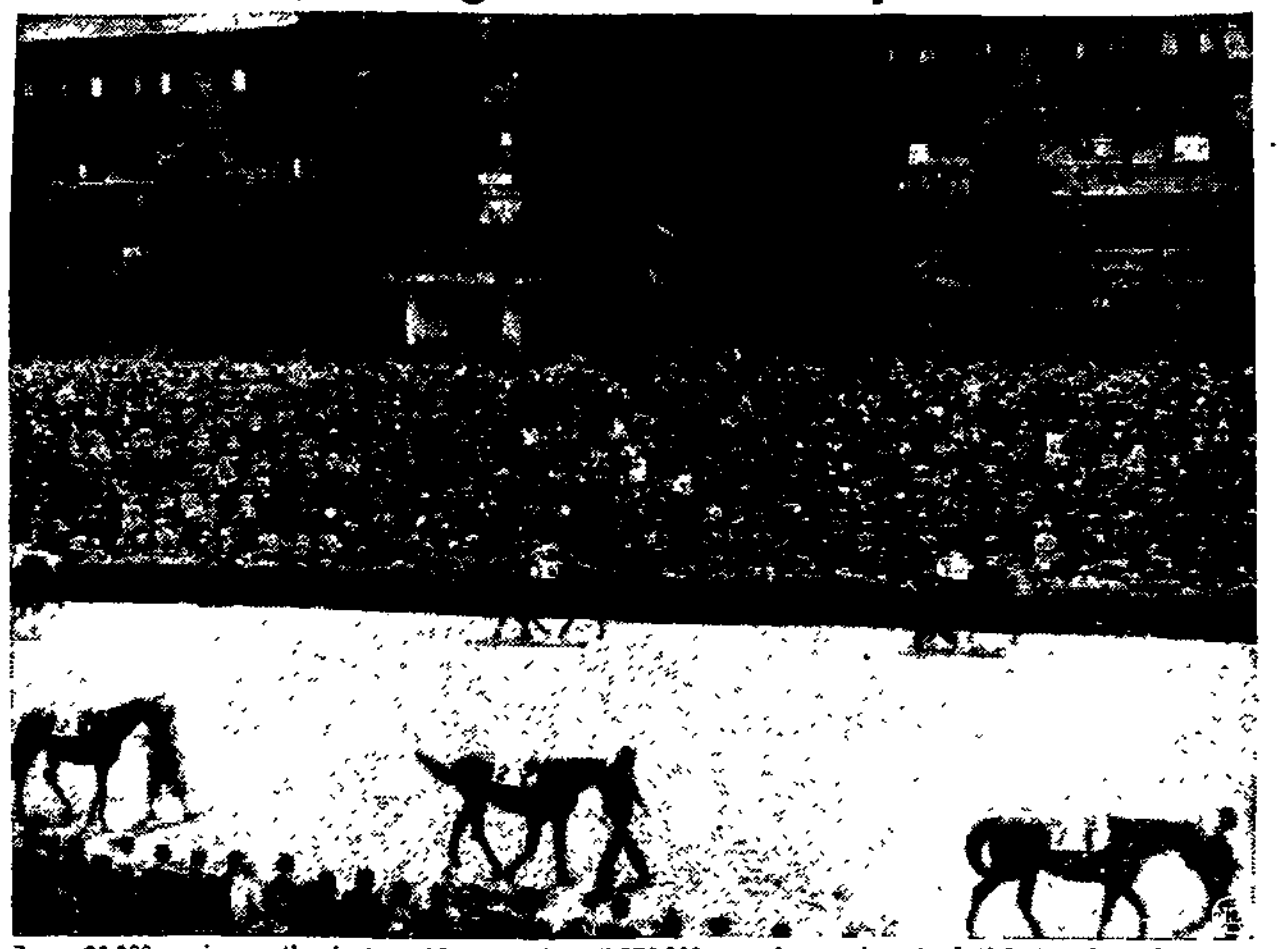

JOHNSON RALLIES
Washington, Nov. 12.—(P)—Walter Johnson, former pitcher of the Washington Senators, rallied today after a sinking spell and his condition was described as "fair" at Georgetown Hospital.

He has been under treatment since April 15 for a brain tumor.

The volume of liquid fuel shipped overseas in the last year by the Navy and the Merchant Marine was nearly 16 times that of 1945. Overseas forces required nearly twice as many tons of oil as of all other supplies combined.

Woman Pool Shooter At Cotillion's

Miss Ruth McGinnis, women's world champion at pocket billiards, will put on an unusual and entertaining show tonight at 10:00 p. m., at the Warren Billiard Academy. Twenty-five years ago there was a pretty popular expression to the effect that billiards was one game in which women would never be the equal of men. At that time men had things pretty much to themselves—then "along came Ruth" to master the so-called "gentlemen's game."

Miss McGinnis started playing at the age of seven and in a short time became so skillful that she won the world title at the age of nine. She has a high run record of 128 and holds decisions over many professional experts. She is a graduate of State Teachers College, East Stroudsburg, Pa. Is an expert golfer, swimmer, runner and tennis player. The admission will be 25c with ladies as well as men invited for a game followed by some trick shooting.

Miss McGinnis will give a special exhibition at the Elks club-rooms at 11:00 p. m.

INNOCENT

"Snippy" answers to customers? The "run-around"? The "let-em-wait" attitude? Not at Personal Finance Company! My customers have declared me innocent!

And they say I'm not guilty either of saying "No" to them when they ask for something. Proof: 4 out of 5 who ask for a loan here—get it!

"Personal" makes loans from $25 to $250 on signature alone, or on furniture or auto. Friends, relatives or employer not notified. Usually I say "Yes" to loan requests in a hurry. But even when circumstances are unusual I try to find a way to work out a deal. That's why "Personal" is so often able to make loans that others cannot.

Like most people, I don't believe in unnecessary borrowing. . . . but when a loan is needed or to your advantage, I'll be glad to say "Yes." Any time you need extra cash—see me, won't you? I'm at Personal Finance Co., 216 Liberty street, second floor, over Lester Shoe Store. Phone 285.

Purchasing Agents Held Good Meeting

Twenty-seven members and guests of the Purchasing Agents Association of Northwestern Pennsylvania, enjoyed a review of world affairs given at the Emery Hotel, Bradford, Thursday evening, November 7 by Mr. John Armstrong, Professor of Political Science for St. Bonaventure College and Associate Editor of the Olean Times-Herald. Professor Armstrong dealt at length with the position in world affairs held by the United States and Soviet Russia. He pointed out that of the eight world powers entering World War II only five emerged. He added that of those five France was attempting a recovery, China was suffering a civil war and Great Britain because of colonial troubles was forced to accept third place among the top powers. United States and Soviet Russia are at the top of the heap representing a struggle between the Communist and Capitalistic systems but it does not necessarily follow that another world war will be the culmination of this contest according to Professor Armstrong. The speaker touched on many current world events principally as related to the United Nations and the leading members of that group.

President Ledebur called on E. C. Walker of Bradford to give a report on the meeting held at the Duquesne Club in Pittsburgh on November 2 at which George A. Luman, President of the National Association of Purchasing Agents was the guest of honor and principal speaker. Mr. Walker had nothing but praise for the Pittsburgh Association members as hosts. President Ledebur, of Warren, H. L. Kaness, of Knox and A. W. Clinger and L. R. Forker of Oil City also attended the meeting.

The December meeting will be in the form of a Christmas party and will be held at the Greenwood Hotel, Knox, Pa., on Friday, December 13. The committee appointed to handle the arrangements for the affair includes H. L. Kaness, A. E. Wines, Frank Cruckshank and John Henderson.

THE REASONS BEHIND OUR REQUEST

Wait Until Next Season Before Changing to Gas Heat

The unprecedented requests for changing to gas heat threaten to tax our transmission and distribution systems beyond the limits of good service. This comes at a time when it is impossible to secure the pipe, fittings and compressors necessary to handle the overwhelming demand.

WHY THE GREAT SWING TO GAS HEAT?

For years gas has been sold as a heating fuel of luxury value. Numerous tangibles, other than fuel cost, were included in its value to win public acceptance. Now the rise in price of other fuels makes gas heat the most economical today on a straight fuel cost basis in nearly all areas in this general part of the country.

MATERIAL AND LABOR SHORTAGE

You who have been trying to buy an automobile, soap chips, white shirts or other scarce items readily will understand our position. We and our affiliates are trying to spend some 50 million dollars to improve the facilities for bringing gas from the abundant fields of supply to your premises. Because of the dire shortage of necessary materials and skilled manpower to install them, only a fraction of this 50 million has been spent this year.

TEXAS GAS

The Tennessee Gas Transmission Corporation, which owns a line bringing a large percentage of our gas from Texas fields, have plans for adding to the capacity of this system for several hundred miles. When completed they will increase substantially the amounts of gas they can deliver to us.

NEW SUPPLY FOR EXTREME WEATHER

We are installing a total of 71 tanks of 30,000 gallons each which will be filled with propane (liquid petroleum gas of a type commonly used by families living beyond gas lines in rural areas) which will blend with our gas. The project will make available the equivalent of 30 million cubic feet of gas a day. This supply is intended for use only in extreme weather. It will exhaust itself in a few days of use and our suppliers will require months to refill the tanks.

The Manufacturers Light and Heat Company has recently completed 54 miles of 20" pipe line to provide an addition to the gas supply, but other contemplated projects were not completed due to the inability to obtain necessary pipe and equipment.

SOME NEIGHBORHOOD LINES OVERLOADED

A survey just completed has disclosed that more gas heating installations have been made in some areas than the capacity of our street mains can serve adequately. Only major insurmountable problems are mentioned here. There are many, many lesser ones.

HEATING CONTRACTORS AND DEALERS COOPERATING

These reasons have prompted the decision to discontinue the sale of gas heating equipment to those having other forms of heating for the coming season. Responsible heating contractors and dealers are cooperating by adopting this plan.

INDUSTRIAL CURTAILMENTS LIKELY

This winter, during periods of severe weather, it most likely will be necessary to curtail industries using gas in their manufacturing processes. All large users of gas for industry have been notified of this possible condition, thus giving them time to make other provisions. Even with this relief, it is possible that some areas will experience low gas pressures if outside temperatures become too low.

PROTECTION FOR G. I. HOUSING

We have a dual obligation to G. I. veterans and the Civilian Production Administration. With both, we intend to cooperate fully by making gas service available to permanent new construction. Through this conservation program, installation materials and resources can be made available for new buildings.

DON'T BE MISLED

By giving you and our other customers reasons for this immediate action, we hope to have the same support from you that heating contractors have promised. Let no one persuade you that the facts are other than here stated. The delay in converting your present heating system to gas until a more favorable time is the best protection of service to your community.
